

Types of outfits

Salwar suit:

- A typically knee-length and flowy top paired with loose-fitting trousers, sometimes carried with a stole (“dupatta”).
- You can get creative with this: both the top and the trousers can be of different styles and lengths (e.g., crop top, wide-legged trousers).

Lehenga:

- A top paired with a long skirt. These often come in many different styles.
- Also called a skirt set, you can create a mix and match outfit with a skirt, crop top and dupatta.

Anarkali:

- A long dress that may or may not come with pants. Similar to a salwar suit but has a fitted bodice and a flowy/flared skirt.

Saree:

- Single unstitched piece of fabric that is wrapped around you. If you are not familiar with sarees, we suggest looking for a “pre-draped” or “pre-stitched” sari which will be much easier to wear! These will come with a blouse and a skirt with fabric to hang over one shoulder. You can also borrow a saree and pair it with a crop top for an easy outfit.
- Ordering pre-stitched sarees: If given the choice when ordering, choose ‘yes’ for the following: ‘Include fall’, ‘Add underskirt’, ‘convert to pre drape’

Kurta:

- A long shirt-type top, typically around knee length. They come in many styles and can have vibrant designs.
- Pants can be straight, skinny or wide leg. They can match the color of the kurta, but also come in basic colors, e.g., white/cream, and can be paired with different colour kurtas.
- Optional: Kurtas can be paired with a vest or jacket to elevate the look. A dupatta, which is a shawl-like scarf, is also an option.
